Vol. 25, No. 5 • May 8, 2002

Vali Siadat, Ph.D., D.A., adjunct professor, mathematical sciences, was awarded the 2002 Distinguished Teaching Award by the Illinois Section of the Mathematical Association of America in April. This is the highest form of state recognition awarded to a college teacher of mathematics. Earlier this academic year, Siadat won the Excellence in College Teaching Award of the Illinois Council of Teachers of Mathematics. Siadat is now a candidate for the prestigious Haimo Award of the Mathematical Association of America.
